HOOVER WILL FOREGO HIS JAUNT WEST

President Gives Up His Vacation To Direct Drought Relief

Washington, Aug. 12 (AP).—Abandonment of his proposed western vacation trip to remain in Washington and direct the drought relief program was announced today by President Hoover.

The President expects to spend two or three days a week at his Virginia camp and, if the weather remains cool in Washington, he may shorten the length of his stay there. The announcement that Mr. Hoover would forego a month's recreation trip to Glacier and Yellowstone National Parks followed the semi-weekly Cabinet meeting at which the drought situation came in for lengthy discussion.

Secretary Hyde reported the latest development in the situation based on several hundred reports from county agents, but no announcement was made as to further steps in the government's relief plans.

It was understood, however, nothing further would be done until after the Governors conference here Thursday.

Weather Bureau forecasts today gave little indication of any immediate or widespread break in the prevailing dry weather.

Washington, Aug. 12 (AP).—The magnitude of the drought relief task ahead was made increasingly evident today by the reports of devastation pouring in under President Hoover and the officials preparing for the Thursday conference of Governors.

The drought to date, in the opinion of the Agriculture Department crop reporting board, has cut crop prospects seven per cent below the estimates of July 1, and every rainless day was said to be reducing expectations of yield in many of the vital farm products.

The picture of conditions presented to Mr. Hoover was a mixed one. The Red Cross represented conditions in Kentucky and Virginia as "alarming," with disease and unemployment threats apparent also in Illinois, Missouri and other states.

Weather Bureau predictions were for showers Wednesday in the Ohio Valley, Tennessee and the lower lake region as well as in south Atlantic states.

12 Governors to Attend

A full attendance was assured the meeting of executives of the twelve most seriously affected states with President Hoover. Another group, representing the farmers themselves, will meet with the President on Friday. At this session Samuel H. Thompson, President of the American Farm Bureau Federation; C. E. Huff, President of the National Farmers Union; and Louis J. Taber, Master of the National Grange, will discuss their share of the task.

The large part states and counties are expected to play in the actual relief work was re-emphasized yesterday by Vice-Chairman Stone of the Farm Board, who pointed out that relief in the form of loans or other organizations could be forthcoming only to organized farmers. The board is restricted in its advances to cooperative organizations which, he said, could best be set up by local interests, familiar with the credit of individuals.

Corn Crop Hard Hit

The decline in crop prospects was attributed by the Department of agriculture in its monthly report, issued yesterday, almost entirely to drought and heat damage to feed crops. Supplies of human food were said to be generally undamaged.

Corn prospects declined 25 per cent under the 1929 crop—the smallest crop since 1901 being forecast. Hay and grain sorghum crops, which together with corn make up half the total acreage, was expected to be the smallest in more than ten years while oats and barley were reduced heavily by drought in the Dakotas.

The average feed crop reduction was placed at 14.1 by comparison with the five-year average, while the total acreage, was expected to be the seven per cent mark by wheat, rye, and buckwheat which were expected to reach within one per cent of the five-year average.

In bushels, the corn crop was estimated as of August 1 to aggregate 2,211,823,000 compared with 2,614,000,000 last year. Further deterioration of possibly 100,000,000 through continued drought since the first of the month also was estimated, giving indications of a crop 25 per cent below the 1929 yield.

All wheat production was estimated at 820,613,000 bushels, compared

Washington, Aug. 12 (U.P.).—Edmond J. Schreiner, 83, who probably has destroyed more than any man alive, has retired from the Treasury Department after 67 years' service. SPOONERS IN BAD

Jerseyville, Ill., Aug. 12 (U.P.).—Couples who "spoon" along farm country roads were placed in the fire hazard class today by farmers who have protested to authorities against "parking petting parties."

SHOES SAVED MAN

Chicago, Aug. 12 (AP).—A dead man's shoes walked into a death mystery yesterday and cleared John Geary of suspicion of murder.

The shoes belonged to Peter Kessler, whose body was found in a northside alley. Because Geary had had an altercation with him several hours before, Geary was arrested by the police.

Unable to determine the exact manner of Kessler's death, police called in Col. Calvin H. Goddard, criminologist. The material found on Kessler's shoes was analyzed as sand and gravel from the roof of a building beside which Kessler's body was discovered.

It is believed that Kessler, who Geary said had been intoxicated, climbed to the roof and fell to his death.

RAG DOLL STARTS RIOT

Passaic, N. J., Aug. 12 (U.P.).—A rag doll caused a race riot here. As a result of the fracas between Whites and Negroes, Paul Mattalyno, 37, is being held without bail on charges of atrocious assault and with intent to kill.

Mattalyno is the father of Alina, 5, who fought with two Negro children, Willie Walker, 4, and his sister, Irene, 2, for a dirty rag doll.

Police charge Mattalyno with seizing the doll and striking Irene Walker unconscious. Willie yelled for help. His uncle Richard Hunter, 46, started after Mattalyno, and was hit by a milk bottle.

The Negroes chased Mattalyno to his home, and is charged with firing four shots, wounding Willie Walker in the thigh. Police arrived just in time.

Kidnaping Case Is Ended In Columbus

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 12 (AP).—Governor Cooper last night refused to sign extradition papers from Illinois authorities for Mrs. Ethel Evans, 30, Bexley, a Columbus suburb, and Jacob Simpson, 42, a roomer in Mrs. Evans' home, who were wanted in Illinois to answer child stealing charges.

Mrs. Evans and Simpson were charged with having gone to the home of the former's sister, Mrs. Otto Schafer of Danville, Ill., and with having taken Mrs. Evans' 4-year-old daughter, Grace, returning her to Columbus. Mrs. Schafer and her husband came here with certified copies of legal adoption papers and the child was turned over to them.

Mrs. Evans and Simpson were from under bond of $500 each pending the outcome of child stealing charges filed by Schafer. Police officials here said the bonds would be ordered dropped and the case closed.

YOUTH, LAUDED AS HERO 4 YEARS AGO IN CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, HELD FOR CAUSING A FATALITY

Hoopeston, Ill., Aug. 12 (UP).—Lauded as a hero in the Congressional record four years ago, Eugene Larsen, 18, of Rankin, a high school student, was condemned by a Coroner's jury today for reckless joy-riding which caused the death of Mrs. Frances Scone Washburn, wife of Ray Washburn, New York advertising man.

Mrs. Washburn, daughter of Harvey Scone, prominent agriculturist of Sidell, was killed last Wednesday when an automobile, in which she was riding with her father was struck by a motor car driven by young Larsen. The Coroner's jury held the youth to the September grand jury for action. His companions in the automobile were another young man and two girls.

Larsen's citation in the Congressional Record of May 3, 1926, was a result of his heroism in saving his father from a maddened bull. The act occurred February 9, 1925. The boy was 13 years old at the time.

ST. LOUIS FLIERS NEAR MARK MADE BY HUNTER BROS.

Have Less Than 24 Hours To Go To Pass Sparta Miners' Record

St. Louis, Aug. 12 (AP).—The monoplane "Greater St. Louis" piloted by Dale Jackson and Forest O'Brien, early today soared nearer and nearer to a new record for endurance refueling flying. As Jackson and O'Brien approached the present record of nearly 554 hours, held by the Hunter brothers, their plane continued to function well—so well in fact, that John Hunter, a visitor at Lambert-St. Louis Field, said "it looks as though they have got it in the bag."

At 9:11 a. m. today (CST) Jackson and O'Brien had been circling over the field for 530 hours and had slightly less than 25 hours to go to equal the Hunters' record. Under endurance flying regulation, they must remain up an additional hour to break the record.

Although within sight of the record, which they formerly held, Jackson and O'Brien today had no intention of an early landing. They planned to remain in the air at least eight days beyond the present record. Jackson, speaking over the plane's transmitter, even talked of staying up three weeks more.

Note of Chagrin

John Hunter, who acted as spokesman for the brothers after their arrival here yesterday, assured their St. Louis rivals they would not attempt to break the record of the Greater St. Louis this year if a new mark is achieved.

There was a suggestion of chagrin, however, in the well wishes of Harry Perkins, of St. Louis, the Hunters' manager. The success of Jackson and O'Brien has cost the Hunters about $100,000 in contracts which might have been forthcoming if there were not a tendency to wait and see if a new record was established, Perkins said.

The fliers received the first assurance of a financial return from their flight yesterday when an oil company announced it would give them $100 for each hour they remain aloft over the old record. The offer will continue for 70 hours, or until the run reaches 77,000.

Miss Mamie Remmers Passed Away Monday

Miss Mamie Remmers passed away at the Dixon public hospital last evening at 4 o'clock, her death following an emergency operation. She was born in Marion, Mo., January 20, 1875, coming to Lee county at the age of three months. The funeral will be held at the home, 112 E. Chamberlain street at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Rev. P. H. Stahl officiating, and with burial at Oakwood.

Taffy, the favorite confection of northern seaside resorts, traces its name to the South Sea Island of Java.

In some sections there was crop damage by the sudden cold, but this was less than it would have been if the preceding heat and drought had not already done about all the damage there was to do.

Continued cool was the forecast.

Hawks Plans Take Off Tomorrow A. M.

Los Angeles, Calif., Aug. 12 (UP).—Captain Frank M. Hawks, holder of the east-west transcontinental 301 speed record, announced today will take off at 2 A. M. P. S. T., on Wednesday for New York in an attempt to beat Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's time for the distance.

Adverse weather conditions over Arizona caused Hawks to postpone a scheduled take off last night, but later improvements led to predictions of ideal flying weather to morrow.

Two Hungarian aviators, Alexander May and George Endres, plan to leave Thursday for Flint, Mich., to start a proposed trans-Atlantic flight from there to Budapest.

Oil fields of great promise have been discovered in Bolivia.

Many Danger Points In Forest Fires Reported By Officials

Menominee, Mich., Aug. 12 (AP).—The thirsty timber of the northland cracked today.

Reports of new danger points came in hourly as flames blazed through parched cut-over and timberlands in the upper Michigan peninsula and northern Wisconsin.

An observer in a forest patrol tower 60 miles north of Menominee said he counted ten separate fires within ten miles of his tower.

In the drought-stricken peninsula counties more than 75 separate fires were reported. These raged through Marquette, Dickinson, Luce, Schoolcraft, Alger, Chippewa and Mackinac counties. Highway travel has been cut off between Cedar River and Stevenson in Mackinac county.

All of Menominee county was in danger unless the fires were controlled soon, Joseph M. Hornick, Conservation Commissioner, said. Only rain could bring immediate relief.

Forest lands still blazed at the edge of Menominee but the city was safe unless a strong west wind lapped the flames against outlying buildings.

In Wisconsin, Indians and whites tolled together to save timber in Ashland, Forest, Bayfield and Langlade counties. The Wisconsin fire have not reached a serious stage but forest men said constant vigilance was necessary.

Minnesota had only a few scattered brush fires.

Utah Cities Under Water Of Cloudburst

Salt Lake City, Aug. 12 (AP).—Homes, armlands and highways were beneath a sea of mud today, washed upon them when cloudbursts sent floods roaring out of canyons into sections of the Salt Lake Valley yesterday.

At Bingham, site of the Utah Copper Company mine, the flood swept down the town's long single street demolishing twenty homes, damaging many more and filling business houses with rocks and mud.

Centerville and Farmington, too, felt the full fury of the storm. Nearly a hundred farm residents were driven from their homes by torrents which rushed out of four canyons killing livestock, tearing down buildings and endangering the lives of fleeing farmers.

The disturbance started with cloudbursts at Ophir, east of here, travelled to Bingham and crossed the Great Salt Lake to Centerville and Farmington.

AGED ST. LOUISAN AND WIFE FEARED KIDNAP VICTIMS

Had A Draft For $70,000 When Last Seen In Ohio Wednesday

Defiance, Ohio, Aug. 12 (UP).—Authorities of northwestern Ohio were searching the highways and towns along the Indiana border today for trace of Charles Kern, 80, wealthy St. Louisan, and his wife who disappeared this morning while carrying a bank draft for $70,000.

Authorities fear the aged couple may have been kidnapped by a gang of confidence men.

According to the story placed together by police of Toledo, St. Louis, Defiance and Fort Wayne, the Kerns left St. Louis yesterday, carrying the $70,000 draft with which Kern planned to "close a real estate deal."

At Fort Wayne they were met by two men, whom they received as friends, and who rode with them to Toledo.

From Toledo the four embarked to Defiance, where they were met by several other men in an automobile. The party drove away and the Kerns have not been seen since.

Officers Fear Trap

Although the "real estate deal" may have been a legitimate business venture, officers fear it was a trap of the confidence men.

Kern's hesitancy to tell St. Louis bankers what he was going to do with the money, the disappearance of the entire party in the automobile, and the fact that Kern only at the last moment decided to take a draft instead of cash, lent color to the fears of officials.

"I think he probably was the victim of confidence men," Chief of Police Haas of Toledo, said. "They probably expected him to bring the $70,000 in cash and when he brought a draft it put a crimp in their plans."

Highways Patrolled

All banks in the district have been notified of the draft. Deputy Sheriffs from Defiance and other towns patrolled the highways for the missing car, and persons who saw the party detain here were questioned by police.

Chief Haas, questioned by phone, was asked why he feared the couple was kidnapped.

"I didn't say they were," he replied, "but when we lost trace of Kern and his wife, with all that money in their possession, we got worried."

"If they were confidence men, they were probably working the old game in which the swindler promises the victim big money if he will invest a large amount of cash hurriedly. Kern's bank draft would have upset such a plan."

Chief of Detectives Jerry Buck, of Toledo, said he believed the Kerns had been taken to Chicago, as the automobile in which they left here bore an Illinois license.

Chief Haas questioned all real estate operators in Toledo and found no one who knew of an impending deal large enough to involve $70,000.

Wealthy Chicagoan Found Dead In Bed

Chicago, Aug. 12 (UP).—The body of Oliver G. Leach, wealthy real estate dealer with offices in the loop, was found today in his richly furnished north side apartment.

A 38 calibre pistol lay at the side of the pajama-clad body. Leach had been shot once in the right temple. Police said the circumstances indicated suicide and called Coroner Herman N. Bundesen.

The body was discovered by Mrs. May Finnegan, an employee of Leach, who lives with her mother in an adjoining apartment on the seventh floor of the Belmont-Plaza, an exclusive apartment hotel on the north side near the Gold Coast.

Mrs. Finnegan, a divorcee, said she heard no shots and that so far as she knew her employer had no reason to kill himself.

Leach, who also was in the lumber business as well as having real estate offices on North Wabash Avenue, had been separated from his wife for two years and moved into the fashionable hotel early in July.

Nearly 4,500 men are to be employed in building an 85-story building in New York.

Young Illinois Aviator Held For Bombing Non-Union Coal Mines In Kentucky Yesterday

Murphysboro, Ill., Aug. 12 (UP).—Paul Montgomery, 23-year-old flier, who has been planning a trans-Atlantic flight for two years, but has been unable to start because of a series of financial difficulties, was arrested today and held for Kentucky authorities in connection with the airplane bombing of non-union coal mining fields near Providence, Ky., yesterday.

Sheriff William Flannigan said no formal charge had been brought against Montgomery, who has admitted his yellow and black Barling monoplane was in the air at approximately the time of the bombing.

Montgomery denied knowledge of the aerial attack. He informed police he took a companion and two girls for a "joy ride" around dawn yesterday, after a party.

The license number of Montgomery's plane is 508-M. The number of the bombing craft was reported as 508R.

Montgomery is the son of a retired coal operator at Elksville, Ill.

His 25-day vigil resulted from a desire to stay up longer than the Hunter brothers. The Hunters visited him at one stage of his adventure.

Officers who were searching for the killer's car attempted to stop a Ford coupe north-east of Sterling about 1 o'clock this morning. The driver speeding away from the scene and turning out his lights as the officers approached. One bullet struck the car and the driver later reported to the officers, thoroughly frightened after his experience.

Charles Boggett, who witnessed the exchange of shots, pursued the policeman's slayers for more than a mile east of Sterling, but was outdistanced, as they sped away without lights. At noon today, city and state police were without a clue as to the identity of the killer, but were running down every bit of information that could be secured. It was believed that the car would be abandoned and if located would reveal several bullet holes in the windshield or sides of the machine.

KONJOLA MADE REAL RECORD IN STUBBORN CASE

New Medicine Ends Ailments of Fifteen Years—Wins Lasting Friend

MRS. D. E. BELMEYER

"For more than fifteen years I suffered from stomach and bowel troubles," said Mrs. D. E. Belmeyer, Route No. 2, Taylor, Mo., near Quincy. "I bloated frightfully after meals and often suffered from heartburn. I had a pain in my right side and was subject to dizzy spells. My color was bad and for some years I had been very nervous. I was then attacked by sharp pains in my shoulders and arms. Sleep became more and more difficult.
"I was more than satisfied with the results that I received after I had taken three bottles of Konjola. I have taken eight bottles to date and can truthfully say that Konjola has done more good than all other medicines and treatments put together. My bowels are regular, I do not bloat after meals and my nerves are calm. Neuritis pains have left my arms and shoulders. I am in better health than I have been in fifteen years."
This is the usual result when Konjola is given a real test. From six to eight bottles is the recommended treatment in most cases.
"Konjola is sold and recommended by all the better drug stores in Dixon, Illinois, and throughout this section."

ROBERT CARD FATALLY SHOT EARLY TODAY

Was State Policeman
Officer Card was 30 years of age and was born and raised at Conso, southwest of Sterling. He had spent his entire lifetime in that vicinity. For six and one-half years, he served as a member of the State Motorcycle Police force, in which service he had proven himself a most capable and dependable officer. A few years ago he was fired upon by machine gunners in a large sedan, while attempting to stop the fleeing machine, the gasoline tank of his machine being punctured seven times and the headlight shot away, but he escaped without a scratch.

His tragic death came as a distinct shock to a host of friends throughout northern Illinois. For the past 30 days he had been serving in the capacity of motorcycle officer of the Sterling police force. He was a member of several Masonic bodies and the Sterling lodge of Elks. He is survived by his widow and two daughters. Funeral arrangements had not been completed today and will be announced later.

HERO OF THREE WARS DIED LATE MONDAY EVENING

Major General Menoher, Former Chief Of Army Air Corps, Is Dead

Washington, Aug. 12.—(AP)—Major General Charles T. Menoher, former Chief of the Army Air Corps, whose break ten years ago with Colonel William Mitchell precipitated a nationwide uproar died late yesterday of pneumonia.

General Menoher had been ill for some time following his retirement in 1926.

During the course of a long and distinguished Army career he had served as battle commander of the Rainbow (Forty-second Division) in France, and bore therefrom the Distinguished Service Medal, and the decorations of France, Belgium and Italy.

The clash with the then Brigadier General Mitchell, Assistant Air Chief took place shortly after Menoher had assumed command of the Army Air forces.

General Menoher openly demanded his subordinate be relieved from duty, thus initiating a nationally-aired debate which culminated in the court martial of Mitchell and his eventual resignation from the service.

John W. Weeks, then Secretary of War, sought to smooth over the clash, but the breach was never healed.

General Menoher resigned as Chief of the Air Corps in 1921 asking a line assignment.

General Menoher was born in Philadelphia March 20, 1862. He also saw active duty in both the Spanish-American war and in the Philippine Insurrection.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Elizabeth P. Menoher of Washington, and three sons, Major Pearson Menoher, instructor at the General Service School, Fort Leavenworth; Capt. Darrow Menoher of the Twelfth Cavalry, Fort Worth, Texas; and Cadet William Menoher, who is in his second year at West Point.

He will be buried in Arlington cemetery.

PEACE PACT OF TONGS APPEARS TO BE SCRAPPED

Murders Of Chinese In New York, Chicago, Arouse Officers

New York, Aug. 12.—(UP)—The Hip Sings and On Leongs, traditional and bitter enemies through many years of long warfare, were believed today to have broken the pact, in which only a few months ago, agreed to "permanent" peace.

Abrogation of the agreement was seen in the shooting of Charles Ye-Kai, laundry owner, who was attacked by two other Chinese in front of his establishment in the Bronx this morning and taken to a hospital with serious bullet wounds.

Several months ago the Hip Sings and On Leongs—most powerful of the Chinese societies—promised the government they would end their feud, which has taken hundreds of lives in the last two or three decades. The government, in exacting the promise, threatened to deport wholesale numbers of tong members.

Recently the On Leongs have been at war with a smaller group, called the Tong On Society, over an alleged opium shipment valued at more than $1,000,000. The president of Tong On, who is understood to have guaranteed the safe arrival of the shipment and then failed in his promise, was assassinated several months ago.

This feud, however, did not affect the "peace pact," since the Hip Sings were not involved. Today's shooting indicated the Hip Sings had been drawn into the conflict on the side of the Tong On group.

GUARD CHINATOWN
Chicago, Aug. 12.—(UP)—Extra police patrolled streets of Chicago's Chinatown today, guarding against further outbreaks of a tong disturbance which had resulted in the killing of one man.

George Moe, said to be a deserter from the Hip Sing tong, was attacked and killed by three Chinese as he walked along a street in the Chinese section of the city. He attempted to defend himself, but was shot as he drew a gun from his pocket.

Police said Moe was one of several Hip Sings who had deserted to join the ranks of the On Leong and they interpreted Moe's death as a warning to other members.

WINTER'S SNOW

SOFT clinging robe of purest white.
That winter wove and spun
From snowflakes softly as they fell
In silence one by one—
Far flung the mantle fluttered down
To earth without a sound,
And there in wondrous purity
It rested on the ground.

Pestooned on tree and shrub it hung
As if to beautify
And lend enchantment to the scene,
To fascinate the eye—
Gleaming with silver sheen at night
Asneath the moon it lay,
With scintillating diamond light
Beneath the sun of day.

Fuller-Edous Wedding Announced

News of a wedding of a popular young Dixon couple has just become known, that of Miss Ethel Fuller and Harold W. Edous. They were united in marriage on Saturday, Aug. 2nd, in Galesburg, Ill., by the Reverend H. A. Smith, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church of that city. The ceremony was solemnized at 10:30 A. M., and the bridal couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. George Schmidt of Galesburg. The bride was attired in a lovely gown of cream flowered chiffon and wore a bridal corsage. The matron of honor wore a pretty figured chiffon and wore a corsage bouquet also.

Mr. and Mrs. Edous have returned to Dixon and will make their home at 609 Jackson, and are receiving the best wishes and congratulations of hosts of friends, for both young people are well known and well liked by a large circle of friends.

Hillison-Clink Wedding Monday

Miss Frances E. Hillison of Amboy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Will Hillison, and LeRoy H. Clink of Sublette, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Clink were united in marriage Monday at the Court House in Dixon, by Judge William Leach, in his chambers there. The marriage was solemnized at 2:30 o'clock. Both are splendid young people with hosts of friends in Amboy, Sublette and Dixon, all of whom hasten to extend best wishes and congratulations on the happy event. The bride was charmingly gowned in flat crepe in one of the new blue tones with rich trimmings of embroidery. They left on a honeymoon trip to Chicago and points east, their journey to include a boat trip. They will make their home with the bridegroom's parents for the present on their return. The Telegraph joins in wishing them much happiness.

Have You Heard?

You can make a pretty necktie rack from one of the wire coat hangers on which your clothes come home from the cleaners.
Do it in the following manner: Bend down the hook, with the end outside, so you can hang a cover over your ties or a coat in an emergency. Hold in place with a double point tack. Twist and tack each end with a large upholstery tack to hold it stationary on the "crotchet" door or wherever you want it. You can paint it lavender, pink, blue, or whatever color your room scheme calls for or you can keep it black, using bright yellow or red upholstery tacks for contrast.

HARMON HOME BUREAU MEETING
The Harmon Home Bureau will meet Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Ellie Kugler at her home in Harmon. The subject of the session will be "Small Equipment" and visitors are welcome.

YOUR CHILDREN

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

HOW SHALL I TEACH MY CHILDREN MANNERS?

"By being mannerly yourself."

A hard question with an easy answer.

And that's a fact. If we watch the gentlemanly, thoughtful boy, or the courteous, likable little girl, we jump to one conclusion: "What fine parents they must have!"

Children can't be allowed to act like pirates until they are six or seven and then, the family taking a notion to teach them the amenities, be expected to respond to such orders as, "Be polite to the lady," "Say Thank you, Johnny," "Let Mary go first," "Stand up when Aunt Jane comes in," "Don't grab the first piece out of the box," and "Gentlemen don't slam doors and throw their things on the floor."

No, the time to breed gentleness in the bone is when those bones are forming.

Children may and do profit by reminding and watchful suggestion, but the lesson of manners goes a hundred times deeper and lasts a thousand times longer if they see it done instead of hearing it talked about. And they must see it from the cradle up.

Like Father, Like Son

A boy who sees his father slamming doors and throwing newspapers on the floor will naturally expect the same right. I wonder how many fathers realize the George Washingtons they are to their small sons. The man idealized can do no wrong. What he does is right, to his boy, whether it be shouting at his people, walking ahead of his wife, cursing the neighbors or kicking the cat.
Then, too, girls imitate their mothers. The woman casual of behavior can scarcely expect her daughter to be otherwise. On the other hand, the gentle mother who stresses her own good manners should have the same type of daughter.

Allow for Impulse

Of course we often see discrepancies in the behavior of children of refined parents. But we must make allowances for the impulse and impatience of childhood. Time will tell a different story and almost invariably such children emerge a little later with every evidence of good breeding and good manners. If not there is some other reason.

So I repeat that real manners are ingrained by example and polished by suggestion. The superficial credos of behavior will never have the ring of the genuine if they are merely veneered on top of a cheap article.

And so, as we are ever staging a show for the critical and analytical eyes of our youngsters, I think it behooves us all to amend the mores in our own conduct before we try taking out the beams in either those eyes or the conduct of their owners.
True manners, like charity, begin at the doorstep and if we want them as company for the children we will have to urge them to stay as our own guests.

What Paris is Wearing

By K. DORSEY

PARIS—A new kind of bracelet has just been introduced in Paris, to go with dresses that are reminiscent of earlier fashion periods—moyen-age frocks, 1820 and 1880 clothes. Its edges are slanting instead of straight, so that the jeweled band falls down over the hands like the elongated sleeves of old-fashioned gowns.

Often as not, this new bracelet is worn with a gown that is entirely sleeveless, and with deep evening décolletage. But when worn in pairs, they fall below the wrists and cover the upper part of the hand to give the same effect as a long, tight, graceful sleeve.

Paris women like this new bracelet well—although it has been designed only a few weeks it has already appeared at several smart gatherings. Women are finding new ways of wearing it—such as turning it upside down so that it flares upward and placing it high on the forearm. It is sometimes seen with three-quarter sleeves, so that the jewels seem like flaring cuffs.

The bracelet pair pictured are from Rue de la Paix, and set small diamonds around big squares of pale aquamarine.

QUEEN OF TENNIS WILL NOT DEFEND TITLE THIS YEAR

Decides To Rest At Her Home In California: Ruled Since 1923

San Francisco, Aug. 12—(A.P.)—Helen Wills Moody has decided she will not defend her national women's tennis title this month at Forest Hills, N. Y.

The champion gave unwillingness to leave her husband, home and relatives so shortly after her trip to England, as the reason.

"I have decided to stay at home with my husband and relatives for a time," the tennis champion said. "It wouldn't be right for me to go away again so soon when I have just returned from a long trip."

"I love competitive tennis and have no intention of giving it up, but I am not going to defend my national title this year."

Mrs. Moody returned recently from Wimbledon where she captured the singles title. With her she brought many furnishings for the Moody apartment here.

The apartment hardly was arranged to suit her, she said, when she was again confronted with the problem to make a long journey east to defend the title she has won six times.

The entry list for the national women's event closed today.

She has been practicing tennis on local courts and said she would continue to devote considerable time to her art work.

RULED SINCE 1923

New York, Aug. 6.—(A.P.)—The decision of Helen Wills Moody not to defend her women's national tennis championship this year marks the abdication of a queen who has ruled the courts since 1923.

The only previous break in the series of triumphs which began when she took the national championship from the former Molla Bjurstedt some years ago, was in 1926, the year she was kept out of competitive play by an operation for appendicitis.

Her career as a tennis champion began when she was 15 years old, with the winning of the girl's national tournament. She repeated the next year, then moved up to fight her way to the top of the seniors. In 1922 she was runner-up for the national title and has never been headed since in any tournament in which she competed.

Her European campaigns have been as successful as her play in this country. She won both the British and French singles championships this year. She also won the British doubles championship at Wimbledon this season with Miss Elizabeth Ryan.

Mrs. Moody was born in Berkeley, California, October 6, 1905. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Clarence A. Wills. Her first tennis coaching was at the hands of her father, a creditable player himself and later under "Pop" Fuller, widely known instructor.

OUR INVISIBLE RULER

Lest we become too proud of ourselves, let us reflect just a moment and consider how puny we really are.

Man has made many advances. He has flown the oceans, built instruments that will carry the human voice around the world, probed the mysteries of the stars, made machines that will do the work of a million slaves and accomplished many other things.

But we are still powerless in the face of a far greater power.

Italy's great earthquake, dealing widespread death and destruction, demonstrates that in the hands of the forces of nature we are as helpless as children, despite all the glorious advances that science and education have made. Something utterly beyond our control may rule our fates and our destinies, and possibly our lives.

In the pattern of the universe, our world is a mere speck. When the forces that lie behind it all express themselves we realize then how weak and helpless we really are.

MONEY FOR AMUSEMENTS

The Very Rev. W. R. Inge, England's famous "gloomy dean," remarks that what American's spend on luxuries in two years would pay off the British war debt. He estimates that American's spend ten and a half billions on amusement annually.

Undoubtedly, the dean means that this is all very deplorable; but for the life of us we can't see why. Granted that a deal of money is spent on very foolish, inane amusements; granted that we spend a lot of money for amusement when we might better be putting it in the bank; even so, that huge expenditure for recreation is, to our way of looking at things, a good sign.

At the very worst, it means that an enormous number of Americans are able to spend time and money on recreation. They are able to forget about the cares of the workaday world every so often, even if they don't always make their expenditures wisely. If we are leaving drudgery and monotony behind us it is a good thing, no matter how foolishly we act when we look for amusement.

WHY THE HUNT MAY LAG

Al Capone, at his quiet retreat in Florida, is quoted as remarking tersely that the Chicago police know perfectly well, and have known all along, who killed the reporter, Jake Lingle.

Mr. Capone ought to know, if anyone does; but whether his remark is correct or not, it is highly significant—pointing as it does, to the fact that there are so many things in the background of this Lingle murder that practically no one in Chicago wants to see dragged out into the open.

It may prove simple enough to convict the man who fired the shot into Lingle's brain; but to tell the whole story of this murder it will be necessary to wash a great deal of extremely dirty linen in public. Some of this linen is owned by Chicagoans of considerable prominence. If, now and then, Chicago seems to be just a trifle lackadaisical about catching Lingle's murderer, they may be a reason for it.

RAILROAD WHISTLES

Railroad men believe that they will eventually be able to devise a railroad whistle which will shoot its shaft of noise directly to the railroad crossing instead of scattering it all over the countryside; and while this would be highly efficient, and while any step to diminish the daily amount of noise in this noise-ridden civilization of ours ought to be welcomed, we're not sure that we're entirely in favor of this plan.

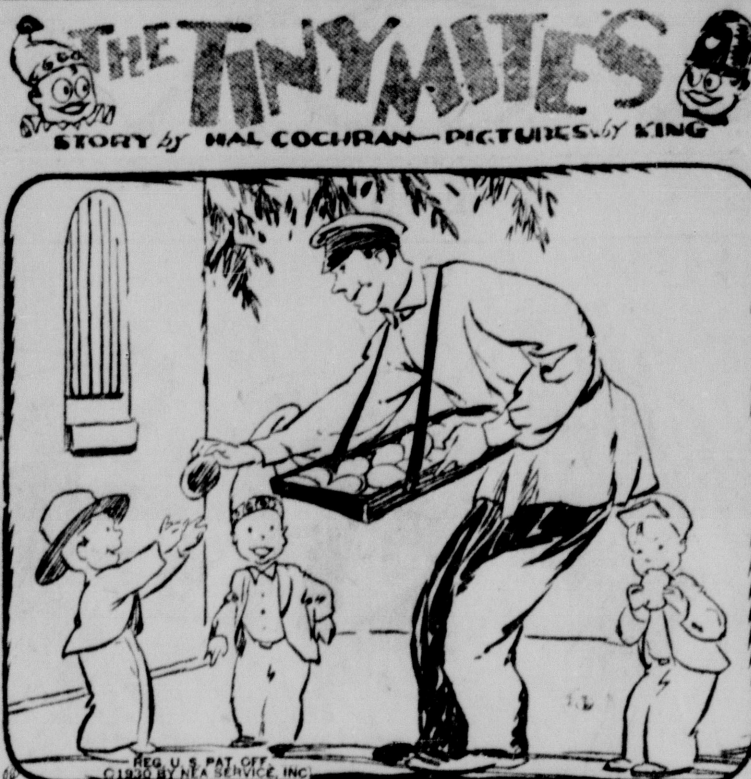

The railroad whistle is in a class by itself. It is one of the most romantic sounds one ever hears. To lie in bed, late at night, and hear some distant flyer whistling for a crossing, is to experience the feeling that one has heard the eerie horns of elfland blowing beyond the horizon. The note is haunting beyond words, with an instant melancholy that defies description. We should be sorry to be deprived of it.

WHY ALL THE DELAY?

It develops from Washington that reorganization of the tariff commission will be delayed until fall. The White House, it is said, felt that the Senate should not be burdened by having to consider the nomination of new commissioners at this time.

This may be excellent reasoning; yet we seem to recall that the one great, outstanding virtue of the new tariff law was that it contained a flexible scale by which a tariff commission would be able to revise duties scientifically and remove any inequalities that might, in the haste of Congress, have crept in.

That being the case, it might be the part of wisdom to reorganize the tariff commission without delay, so that we could get the benefit of this redeeming feature. Otherwise, people may be mean enough to suspect that this new commission isn't going to work any better than the old one did.

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The man did all his work real quick. Said Clowdy, "Say, he's pretty slick. But folks here wear just slippers, while we Tynmies wear shoes. They're soft and must be quite a treat. I'd think, though, they'd slip off their feet. Now wouldn't they look funny, if a slipper they should lose?"

The Travel Man then said, "Well, they are wearing slippers every day and thus they all are used to it. A slipper's never lost. They cling right to the feet real tight and everything works out all right. Perhaps we ought to do that, too. It might cut down the cost."

"This made the Tynmies laugh in glee. And Scouty said, 'Oh, mercy me, I'd rather have my good strong shoes. I like them much the best. I fear, in slippers, I would slip and also, I might even trip.' And this thought was agreed to, very promptly by the rest.

Once more they sauntered on their way and with some wee folks stop-

TODAY IS THE ANNIVERSARY

ABBOTT THAYER'S BIRTH
On August 12, 1849 H. Thayer, discoverer of the law of protective coloration in animals, and called the "Father of Camouflage," was born in Boston.

Famed equally as a painter as for his researches in science, Abbott's canvases hang in the Metropolitan and Boston museums. His paintings are considered creative, and modern.

From his studies on the effect of color in combination or in masses, Thayer developed the law which he believed prevailed in nature's way of protecting animals and birds by marking them with the colorings which blend most easily with their environment. For example, according to Thayer's theory, a flamingo was adorned in colorful dress so that a crocodile in the Nile would mistake it for a sunset and not snap at it.

At the outbreak of the Spanish-American war Thayer offered his plans for making war-vessels semi-invisible. He received little encouragement and let the matter drop. When the World War started Thayer went to Europe and presented his principles before the British and French governments. Many of his devices and formulas, according to the French report citing him for honors, reappeared in real service on the European battle-front and in the disguising of war and merchant vessels.

Baseball Gossip

By EDWARD J. NEIL

Associated Press Sports Writer
The Chicago Cubs breathed deeply today of the dustless air at the head of the procession-leaders of the National League parade once more.

In second place, crestfallen and perhaps just a bit weary of the erratic struggling that is marking the final drive for the flag, are the Brooklyn Robins, out of first place, with the exception of a couple of one day lapses, for the first time since June.

The margin is only a point, but it is a margin, and the worst is yet to come for the Robins must face the battling Cubs themselves in a four game series that opens today in the backyard of the 1929 champions.

The Cardinals dealt their final blow in the overthrow of Brooklyn yesterday, coming from behind in the ninth to score three runs and whip the Robins for the third straight time, 7 to 6, while young Buddy Teachout, freshman south-paw of the Cubs, was taming the Boston Braves, 4 to 2, the third time McCarthy's warriors have turned that trick in two days.

The goat of the Cardinal conquest yesterday was Del Bissonnette, lanky Brooklyn first baseman. Hollis Thurston went into the ninth with a 6 to 4 lead, thanks to Babe Herman's 27th homer, another by Johnny Frederick, an other timely clutching against Johnson and Grabowski. Then Hater and Watkins singled. Bissonnette hit Watkins in the back trying for a forecourt on Fisher's grounder, and two runs scored. Del missed Gilbert's foul, threw late to catch Fisher at third when Gilbert hit to him again, and a pass filled the bases. Babe Phelps replaced Thurston. He got two out but Frankie Frisch, who would like to play in Brooklyn next season, singled home the winning run.

The Cubs' tussle with the Braves was a simple thing with Teachout allowing but six hits. Wallie Berger got his 29th homer but Cantwell was hit freely.

The Pittsburgh Pirates beat the Giants 8 to 5 and kept them from gaining precious ground.

Washington's Senators picked up a game on the pace-setting Athletics in the American League but the beach is still very wide. Washington clipped Cleveland 9 to 2 while old Red Faber and his subball were taming the A's and Lefty Walberg 8 to 3. Goose Goslin hit a pair of homers to lead a St. Louis attack that halted the Yankee winning streak at six games, 10 to 5. O'Rourke and Blue also hit home runs.

Danny MacFayden turned in the best pitching performance of the day, letting Detroit down with three hits as the Red Sox won 5 to 1. The Cincinnati Reds won, 4 to 2, from the Phillies.

SPORT BRIEFS

Chicago, Aug. 12—(AP)—Billy Petrolle, "The Fargo Express," will meet Paddy Walther, a Chicago lightweight, in the ten-round final bout at the Congress Arcade arena tonight.

New York, Aug. 12—(UP)—Miguel Malloy, Chicago promoter, today announced that he would confer with Johnny Buckley and Jack Conway, managers of Jack Sharkey, here on Wednesday regarding a match between Primo Camera and Sharkey in Chicago in September. Malloy said he already had the giant Italian signed to a contract.

Hess of Texas opposed Melvin Partidge of New Rochelle, N. Y., in the feature match of the men's singles in the eastern court tennis championships here today. In the other two matches Berkeley Bell, Austin, Tex., met Jack Tidball, Los Angeles, and Gregory Mangin, Newark, N. J., played Harry Plymire, Stanford.

Chicago, Aug. 12—(UP)—Eddie Hart, 18-year-old Cedar Lake, Ind., started led a field of 76 golfers who started play at Jackson Park today in the second 18-hole qualifying round of the Chicago City championship tournament.

Following today's play the field will be cut to two fights of 32 each, with the low 32 scorers qualifying for match play in the championship flight.

Hart, a former Mount Carmel student who missed qualifying last year by a single stroke, shot a 26-32 for a par yesterday to take medalist honors.

Chicago, Aug. 12—(AP)—Vic Frazier, young right-handed pitcher who has been the property of the White Sox by remote control this season, today was on his way to Chicago to go to work.

Frazier was purchased by the Sox from Dallas of the Texas League last fall, but after going through the spring training season, suddenly decided he would rather stay in Texas.

No amount of urging by Manager Donie Bush could get him to return to Chicago, but President Sol Dreyfuss of the Dallas Club, according to reports from Texas, convinced the hurler that he was throwing away a promising career.

Frazier now is under suspension, and must get the ban lifted before reporting to the Sox.

"LITTLE WORLD'S SERIES" STARTS AT WRIGLEY FIELD

Robins Facing Supreme Test In Series With Fighting Cubs

BY DIXON STEWART
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Chicago, Aug. 12—(UP)—Brooklyn's Robins, dark horse of the National League pennant race, and the Chicago Cubs, pre-season favorites to repeat their 1929 victory, were scheduled to meet today at Wrigley Field in the first contest of a four-game series which is expected to decide the turbulent 1930 pennant race.

The Cubs, riding on the crest of a five-game winning streak which has carried them to the top of the league, regard the "Little World Series" as the deciding point in their bid for a second successive pennant and were confident of victory.

The Robins, in the throes of their worst slump of the year, staked their chances on the strong right arm of Dazzy Vance, hoping to end a four-game losing streak and to break the "jinx" possessed by the Cubs in previous competition this year.

Brooklyn's confidence was weakened by four consecutive defeats by the St. Louis Cardinals and the fact that they have won only 4 games in 15 starts against the Cubs. Previous to running a foul the Cards, Brooklyn had experienced little trouble with clubs other than the Cubs, and at the start of the St. Louis engagement enjoyed a 2½ game lead.

Cards Took Four
Four defeats at St. Louis while the Cubs were winning from Boston, left the Robins tied with the Cubs in games won and lost, but with the Chicagoans holding a .001 percentage advantage. Standings as the teams started play today were:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Chicago	65	44	.596
Brooklyn	66	45	.595

The Robins have lost four games in a row only twice before this season and on both occasions the first three defeats were administered by the Cubs, with a loss to St. Louis completing the streak.

With their longest losing streak already equalled and the Cubs as their opponents for the next four days, the Robins face a big mental handicap. The Robins have won only one game in seven starts at Wrigley Field this season and Brooklyn supporters fear the present series may mark the start of a slump which will remove their team from the ranks of pennant possibilities.

Panic-Stricken
Yesterday's defeat at St. Louis indicated the Robins are becoming panic-stricken. Poor base running and erratic fielding—features of the play of Brooklyn teams in past years which have been missing during the 1930 drive—gave the Cards the game.

Meanwhile the Cubs have been playing their best ball of the season. Hack Wilson, inspiration of the Cubs' attack, is clubbing the ball at a record clip and threatens to establish a new National League home run mark. The pitching staff finally has hit its true gait and four successive low hit pitching performances by Bob Osborne, Pat Malone, Charley Root and Bud Teachout have eliminated Manager McCarthy's worries over his mound staff.

McCarthy planned to open the series with Guy Bush or Fred Bake and counted upon Bob Osborne and Root or Malone for the remaining games.

Manager Wilbert Robinson of the Robins was undecided regarding his pitching rotation, but expressed confidence that his team would make a creditable showing against the Cubs.

"We had some bad breaks at St. Louis, but I'm not worrying about a slump," said Robinson. "The boys have come back like the champions after every previous setback this year and they'll do it this time too."

Madison, Wis., Aug. 12—(UP)—Russell Rehholz and William "Ernie" Lusby, veteran backs on the University of Wisconsin football team, were eligible today after the former passed a conditional examination and the latter acquired a required number of grade points during the summer session. Al Leithan and Guy Shorthouse were the only players of promise today whose scholastic status is still in doubt. Capt. Milton Gantenbein returned to the fold last week when he became eligible on passing a conditional examination.

There are at least four mistakes in the above picture. They may pertain to grammar, history, etiquette, drawing or whatnot. See if you can find them. Then look at the scrambled word below—and unscramble it, by switching the letters around. Grade yourself 20 for each of the mistakes you find, and 20 for the word if you unscramble it. Tomorrow we'll explain the mistake and tell you the word. Then you can see how near a hundred you bat.

The Hollywood Story

by NEA SERVICE Inc. by ERNEST LYNN

BEGIN HERE TODAY

DAN RORIMER, Hollywood scenario writer and former New York newspaper man, meets ANNE WINTER, who has come from Tulsa, Okla., to seek extra work. He takes a deep interest in her. Dan is with Continental Pictures. Anne is just a beginner. Anne gets extra work at Grand United studios. She goes to live with two other extras, MONA MORRISON and EVA HARLEY. The latter is a bitter individual, possibly because of her failure to get much work, and from her Dan learns a lot about the problems of the vast army of extras. GARRY SLOAN, famous director, has noticed Anne Winter. He gives her a "bit" in a picture. Dan, not liking Sloan, although he has not actually met him, is a bit apprehensive. The casting director at Grand United calls Anne up and tells her there may be a chance for her in a musical comedy picture. He and Director FRED HURLEY get her to dance for them.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XIII

"JUST a simple little routine now, Miss Winter—anything at all," Hurley said. He swung around on the piano stool so he could watch her, but his fingers were very busy on the keys and he beat time softly with his foot and his head went up and down in smiling accompaniment.

The piano sounded strangely there in the shadows, a small, strangled voice in a vast emptiness, urging her on to unfamiliar steps. But Hurley's grin was friendly and encouraging, and Harvey Bell sprawled cheerfully in a chair and smoked a cigar, and there was that in his attitude which conveyed the feeling that the proceeding was not at all strange. One looked at him and took heart.

And presently Ann began to dance. Lightly and easily. Approval lighted Director Hurley's eyes as he nodded. He switched to a waltz tune, watched her keenly as she adapted herself immediately to the new rhythm. Once or twice the girl fumbled uncertainly in the unfamiliar routine, but there was no awkwardness in Anne Winter's lithe and graceful body, and when he came to the end of the tune he got up at once and shook her hand and told her she had done very well.

"And Mr. Bell," Hurley said, "tells me you haven't taken any lessons since you were a little kid." Anne told him that was so, and he said, "Well, you haven't any thing to worry about. We've got an instructor who'll have you dancing like Ann Pennington in a week."

He turned to Bell and told the casting director that one could guess Anne Winter would be a good dancer from the way she walked. BELL nodded and said that was true. "I wonder," he said, with a smile for Anne, "whether Miss Winter would mind terribly if we asked her to sing a little."

"Really, Mr. Bell—" Anne began, but Fred Hurley had seated himself at the piano. With a wave of his arm he commanded Anne to come over beside him, and he began to hum as he played. Anne told Rorimer that evening: "They were wonderful to me, Dan! I didn't dance well—really, I felt as clumsy as an elephant."

"Yeah, I imagine so," said Dan dryly. "I bet you knocked them right out of their seats."

"Don't be silly!"

"I mean it," he insisted. "What did they say about your singing? Remember what I told you, if you ever got a chance."

Anne laughed. "Oh, I'm all excited, Dan! They liked it. I'm to have a screen test."

"Say! That's pretty fine! When?"

"Day after tomorrow."

Rorimer said that, under the circumstances, they certainly ought to celebrate. "How about a dance after the movie?"

Anne demurred. "It's too warm, Dan."

"Well, a drive, then, to the beach." He brought his car to a stop in the parking lot beside the Chinese Theater, and Anne said, as they turned toward the lobby, that a drive certainly sounded more appealing.

Sitting beside her in the theater, he watched her, and he kept her in his thoughts, paying scant attention to the story that was unfolding on the screen. Anne's eyes shone with a happy, eager light, but otherwise she seemed calm and cool. Anne, he thought, always seemed that way. The day had been hot—it was the middle of May now—and Anne had been under a strain; but she looked as cool and fresh as though she had stepped out of an electric refrigerator to meet him.

His own day had not gone so well; nothing seemed to go well nowadays at Continental, with Martin Collins gone over to the Amalgamated lot and Adamson on the warpath with one of his periodical campaigns for economy.

Rorimer, looking at Anne Winter, watching the little smile playing on her lips, was glad for her sake that she had no Adamson to contend with. A screen test day after tomorrow. . . . He was proud of her. . . . He thought: "And she did it by herself, too—no pull."

Of course, there had been a word or two from Garry Sloan, and loneliness. I'm afraid of it. . . . Why do you ask?"

Dan said he didn't know exactly. "Unless it's because I was thinking of Eva. I'm rather sorry for Eva, Anne; she seems so cheerful."

"Not all the time," Anne corrected, and Dan, looking up at the star-struck sky and smoking, said it was his guess that Eva at one time or other must have been badly broken up over a love affair.

"Because," he explained, "she's so—oh, I don't know—so defensive when men are around. Paul Collier said the same thing about her. She doesn't have very much use for men, does she?"

"Eva likes you," Anne told him, evasively, and Dan nodded solemnly and admitted that Eva once had told him that.

"But I think," he added, "that Eva had measured me in her mind for some time; weighing me in the balance, you might say." He laughed. "And why, do you suppose?"

"Why?" Anne asked. . . .

"BECAUSE," Dan said, "I think Eva had your interest in mind. In some ways she reminds me of a mother hen; she seems so fiercely protective of Mona, and you, too. I think Eva was trying to make up her mind whether I was the right kind of young man for little Anne Winter to associate with."

Anne laughed. "Now you're being silly again, Dan Rorimer."

"You don't mean that at all; there was absolutely no conviction in the way you said it," he accused her, and Anne made no answer.

Dan said, "In a sense, Eva's quite a comfort to me. I'm a little worried about you myself, and with Eva around to cast a critical eye over the competition, it's—well, it's something for my peace of mind."

Anne, snuggling down in her seat and still smiling at him, said: "Can't you ever be serious?"

"All you have to do to find out," he said, "is to give me a little encouragement," and he looked away from her and took another cigarette from the package in his pocket.

Anne said, with a provocative little laugh: "Yeah?"

"Yeah," he answered. "And I wish you wouldn't use slang. It's not becoming in a young lady on her way to stardom, and under the present circumstances it's quite unromantic." He thought: "It would serve you right if I kissed you here and now for saying that," but he remembered with unpleasant vividness, and a certain amount of pride, what had happened on the one occasion that he had tried it; and he knew a stiff-necked determination not to try it again unless the invitation was unmistakable.

Eva and Mona were sleeping when Anne got back to the bungalow, but Rorimer, when he returned to his apartment, found Paul Collier seated before his portable typewriter and turning out copy in a cloud of pipe smoke.

Collier looked up shortly at Dan's entrance and turned back to his work. "Come in, son," he said, "and tell papa all the news."

Dan felt a malicious satisfaction in the knowledge that Collier would be jolted out of his peculiar casualness within a brief second. He said, and he began leisurely to remove his coat: "I tore up my contract today, papa. How's that for news?"

"GLY-CAS ACTION UNEQUALED BY ANY MEDICINE"

Gly-Cas Restores Mr. Cannon to Good Health When All Else Had Failed in His Stubborn Case

"Gly-Cas is the only medicine ever to reach my case, and now I am enjoying good health again," said Mr. Sam Cannon, R. R. No. 1, Manhattan, Kansas.

MR. SAM CANNON

"The flu affected my liver and kidneys several days ago and I have been in miserable condition ever since, until I began taking Gly-Cas," he continued. "I had an awful hurting in my back, suffered terribly from constipation and indigestion. No matter what I ate it caused me awful misery, nothing brought me relief. I tried all kinds of medicines and medical authorities without results and was finally persuaded to try Gly-Cas, what I should have had years before. Now my kidneys are back to normal, that pain in my back has left, never have to get up nights any more, bowels are regular and that awful indigestion has gone entirely. I eat anything I want without any bad after effects. Its remarkable what Gly-Cas did for me and after all else had failed in my severe case."

Gly-Cas is sold in Dixon at the Campbell White Cross Pharmacy; W. J. Long, West Brooklyn; Franklin Grove, G. S. Ives; Polo, C. R. Clothier; Ashton, G. R. Charters; Amboy, Aschenbrenner Drug; Compton, W. H. Hills; Rochelle, Barker & Sullivan, and by leading druggists in all surrounding towns.—Adv.

CONSTIPATION

By Dr. John E. Cannaday, Charleston, W. Va.

(This series of articles is prepared under the direction of the Gorgas Memorial Institute, which is organized to perpetuate the life work of the late Major-General Gorgas in preventing unnecessary illness. The headquarters of the Institute are at 1331 G Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.)

In the normal life of man as an animal living out of doors and getting abundant exercise in the course of hunting, warfare, games, eating coarse food, constipation is probably relatively unknown. There are two main causes of intestinal stasis or constipation; sedentary occupation, probably coming first; secondly, concentrated diet.

With regard to counteracting constipation by diet and exercise, the following methods are found to be of practical value: Vigorous, active out-of-doors exercise for several hours each day. Several types of exercise are probably better than depending on any one method—swimming, walking, preferably hill and mountain climbing, horseback riding, gardening.

As to diet, coarse food is absolutely necessary. Wheat bran or granular agar, taken in quantities of not less than four heaping tablespoons full per day—many cases will require twice that amount, buttermilk—an abundance of fruit, berries of all sorts, kale and mustard, dandelion and other greens, sauer kraut, should all be eaten liberally and routinely. Rhubarb is of particular value and is a natural non-irritating laxative. Hard apples—fully ripe apples are apparently not very effective. Peaches are particularly laxative, especially when eaten with the skins on, likewise plums. Green corn on the cob, cabbage, broccoli and cauliflower in liberal amounts. With reference to apples for laxative purposes, it must not be expected that eating one or two apples a day will have much effect. Six or eight would probably be a minimum. Many people seem to have the impression that indoor physical exertion such as "setting up" exercises will suffice; this is not nearly so effective as out-of-door exercise, preferably taken sometime during daylight hours. It is well known of course that vigorous exercise should not be taken immediately after meals.

The perfectly normal individual probably has a bowel movement each meal. I have observed that when the normal fecal column has been established and the requisites of diet and exercise have been fulfilled, about three daily bowel evacuations becomes the usual routine. Likewise the stools improve in character and become less offensive.

PHILADELPHIA TO WALK COPS WHO ARE TOO FAT

New Medical Requirements Will Guard Health of Police and Firemen

BY JAMES C. FETZER

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Pittsburgh—(UP)—The fat, jolly cornerman—of which almost every police force can boast—will soon be only a tradition in Pittsburgh.

Passage of the heavy, roundfaced patrolman is presaged by announcement of the establishment of one of the most modern clinics in the country to care for the health of police and firemen—and incidentally to see that members of either department do not become obese.

Careful check of all employees will be made and "cornermen" who show too plainly "that future shadow" will be given a turn at walking a beat. The same policy will be followed in cases of mounted patrolmen and anyone showing a tendency to overweight will be assigned a "walking job."

To minister to the various ailments to which Pittsburgh's 1,000 policemen or 1,000 firemen may be subject, complete has been installed in the new physio-therapy department. It includes ultra-violet ray lamps, whirlpool baths and other similar apparatus.

Two types of ultra-ray lamps are provided—one for checking progress of germicidal activity, the other to be used in "pepping up" police or firemen whose resistance is low.

Another instrument is the articulator, providing massage treatment, which will be used to correct faulty posture or to overcome stiffness of joints.

Chief Surgeon Daniel E. Sable established the clinic after conferences with the Safety Director and the Superintendent of Police Sable will be in charge of its operation and will subject the members of both forces to periodic examination.

"The men shouldn't fear this examination," Sable said. "It isn't anything to hurt them. It's for their own good. They are getting an examination that would cost them a large fee somewhere else."

"If a physical examination reveals that a policeman is overweight, I will prescribe exercises to help him reduce. If a cornerman for instance is too heavy and fails to reduce after being ordered to exercise, I will recommend that he be put on a beat

Another Chapter in Johnson Tragedy

In the little cemetery at Rockville, Md., this new chapter in the tragic story of Walter Johnson's life was enacted—the burial of the former great pitcher's wife and mother of his five children. In the center, behind his son, Eddie, stands Walter, shaken with sorrow. With her hand on Eddie's shoulder is Walter's mother and to the left of the picture are Walter's two brothers, Earl, left, and Chester, from Coffeyville, Kan. Edwin G. Roberts, mayor of Reno, Nev., and father of the late Mrs. Johnson is at the right.

where he can walk off his weight,"

Sable said.
"Or if a mounted officer is too heavy and fails to reduce, I will recommend that he be transferred to a beat. The object of these examinations is to put each man in the job for which he is best fitted."

Daily Health Talk

WELL FORMED MOUTHS
BY LANDIS H. WIRT, D. D. S.
South Bend, Indiana

(This series of articles is prepared under the direction of the Gorgas Memorial Institute, which is organized to perpetuate the life work of the late Major-General Gorgas in preventing unnecessary illness. The headquarters of the Institute are at 1331 G Street, N. W., Washington,
D. C.)

There has been a great deal of new knowledge added to our store in the last decade about the close relation that mouth health bears to general health. The discovery of the X-Ray and its use in revealing diseased areas beneath the surface was the starting point of a new era in Dentistry. It demonstrated that many teeth previously supposed to be in good condition, in reality were sources of infection which set up serious disease processes in remote parts of the body.

We have learned that it is often next to impossible to permanently patch up teeth that have become badly broken down, or such conditions as pyorrhea of the gums after they become firmly established.

Consequently more thought has been applied to problems of prevention and to the correction of faulty function.

Since all preventive efforts require that attention be given early, the natural result has been that more and more interest has been aroused in the care of the teeth of children.

If we needed our teeth only for chewing purposes, we might view without alarm the evidence that we are becoming a toothless race from lack of use of them. For we can get along quite well in that respect without teeth. Since everyone who has to do with the preparation of our food apparently tries to see how cheaply they can come to the elimination of all need of the chewing process. But we have other important uses for our teeth which are not so readily met by substitutes.

The principal functions of the teeth of humans are the mastication of the food, the clear enunciation of words in speech, and to serve as part of the substructure upon which the features of the face are formed.

Any deviation from correct position or inter-relation of any of them impairs their usefulness for any of functions, and also makes it more difficult to preserve them in a healthy condition or to repair them when they have been attacked by dental disease.

The incorrect position or interrelation above referred to is called malocclusion, meaning in simpler words, improper closing, crowding, or irregularity. They do not lit right.

These conditions usually have associated with them abnormal or insufficient development of the face, and the nose and throat often are involved, leading to the development of respiratory troubles, sinus infections, defective hearing and many other physical and even some mental disturbances.

Since the disfigurement of the features and the lowered masticating efficiency are both serious handicaps to happiness, health and success all through life, their prevention, or their correction by means of orthodontic treatment may mean a great deal to every child or youth of the land.

WOMEN TO SEEK LARGE SUM FOR BIG CATHEDRAL

Maintenance Fund is Necessary for Success of Undertaking

BY MARTHA STRAYER

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Washington—(UP)—Somewhere in America are 15,000 women who are going to provide $150,000 annually for maintenance of Washington's new National Cathedral.

That is, if a campaign to be launched next fall and to continue through 1931, is successful.

The cathedral, which stands on the highest point of ground in the National Capital, is slowly going up under the impetus of nation-wide contributions. General John J. Pershing heads an executive committee made up of nationally prominent men and women, who have raised something like half a dozen millions for the construction over a period of several years.

Contributions to the building fund come in rather easily, at the rate of about $1,000,000 a year, and the great building is now about one-third completed. But maintenance is another serious problem, and a special women's committee is to be organized to raise funds for that part of the work.

Mrs. William Adams Brown of New York, who managed a successful campaign to raise funds for the restoration of Sulgrave Manor, original home of the Washington family in England, will head the committee.
Mrs. Alvin T. Kert of Kentucky, former vice chairman of the Republican National Committee, will be one of the members, all of whom will be equally prominent women from various sections of the country. The committee will have charge of the work in her particular territory, with Mrs. Brown in general command.

The object of the campaign will be to enlist 15,000 women who will contribute annually to the maintenance of the cathedral. Annual $2

U. S. Gunboat Fired on by Chinese Communists

Thirty American warships were ordered to stations on the Yangtze river and coast ports in China as a result of the reign of terror at Changsha, Hunan province capital, which reached a climax when Communists attacked the U. be $10. If so, the total will be $150-000 annually.

The committee will organize in October, the campaign will get under way and continue through 1931, and in 1932, when a great service is to be held in the Cathedral as part of the George Washington bicentennial celebration, the gifts will be formally presented by the women's committee.

service between this city and Atlantic City, N. J., is now in operation, six-passenger monoplanes making four trips daily.

Officials of the Ludington-Philadelphia Flying Service, operators of the new line, have set the fare only slightly higher than that of the railroads and include transportation from any point in Central Philadelphia to the heart of Atlantic City.

The whole trip, under ordinary conditions, takes one hour and 10 minutes, 40 of which are spent in the air. The airline distance between the two cities is 55 miles.

"MARIANNE" IS GIVEN SHINGLE IN NEW POSES

Symbolic French Republic
Statue Puritanized, Modernized

BY RALPH HEINZEN

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
PARIS —(UP)—Marianne, the symbolic figure of the French Republic, has been puritanized, modernized and furnished with an up-to-date haircut.

The first Marianne, after the enthusiastic revolutionists seized the Bastille and beheaded a Bourbon king, had a twisted knot of hair, with tiny side-curls, all in the mode of 1790. Under the restoration, after the era of Napoleonic delirium, Marianne had her hair pushed up on her head.

Now under the Third French Republic, in the reign of Gaston Doumergue and Andre Tardieu, Marianne has gone thoroughly modern. The official plaster busts of this symbolic maiden, such as stand on dusty shelves in all French townhalls and public schoolhouses, will show from now on a modest figure with a perfect shingle.

Not only will Marianne's hair be bobbed in the approved manner of the expensive barbershops of the boulevards, but puritans have covered her right breast which hitherto has been exposed.

The bachelor president and the bachelor premier both disclaim authorship of the instructions to cover Marianne's breasts and modernize her hair, but the official mill where the busts are molded insists that all undressed Mariannes are unofficial.

The 1930 official sculptors have changed something about Marianne's lips, also, and she has a sort of self-satisfied smile, strangely comparing with the majestic disdain of the previous current statuettes. Once modeled along Greek lines, Marianne is now purely Latin and particularly Parisian.

EARLY GRECIAN VASES ACQUIRED BY PENN MUSEUM

Rouge Boxes of the Eighth Century B. C. Flapper Find
Way to Philadelphia

Philadelphia (UP)—Four early Grecian vases, two of which probably were used by some flapper 2,800 years ago to store her rouge and lipstick in, have been acquired by the University of Pennsylvania Museum here.

According to H. F. Jayne, director of the museum, the relics date back to the eighth century B. C. and cannot be duplicated in an ymuseum in this country and few abroad. They are what the Greeks called "pyxides," or covered jars for cosmetics, made of carefully prepared red clay on which designs are painted in lustrous black.

"The comparatively rare feature of the pyxides," Jayne stated, "is the groups of rudely modeled horses that are mounted on the cover of each pyxis to form a handle. The design is most interesting and belongs to the period of Greek vase painting, known from the regularity of pattern employed as the geometric.

"The particular relics acquired by the museum are Dipyion vases, the name usually given to Attic geometric vases from the fact that most of them were found in the cemetery in front of the gates Dipyion, outside of Athens, and exemplify to the highest degree the best development of the geometric style.

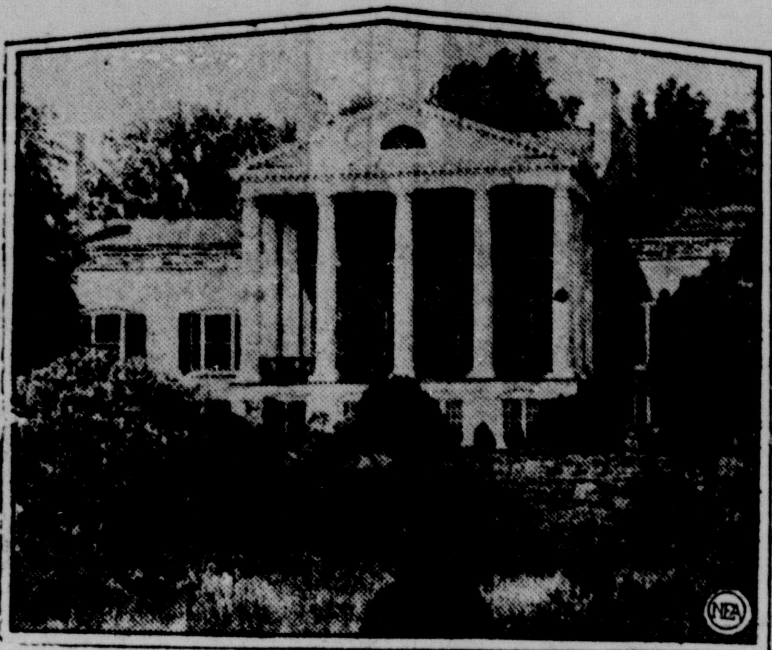

"There is an even covering on the surface of the vases that gives them a carpet like appearance, and this textile expression is strengthened by the geometry of the ornamentation. The swastika, or ancient symbol of good luck, known all over the ancient world is much in evidence and contributes enormously to the severity of line which is so important a factor in classical vase painting.

"Two drinking cups ornamented with the same type design and modeled with highly effective simplicity complete the museum's most recent acquisitions in the Mediterranean section."

WHAT ABOUT A FAIR?

A fair like the Lee County fair is not to be classed with the general run of road shows and circuses. It is deserving of the support of all Lee County residents because it performs a service in the interest of agriculture and our rural communities. It affords a common ground for Lee County to exhibit her agricultural wares. It assists in the development of better live stock breeding. It gives farm boys the opportunity to share in the pride and reward of good stock raising. It affords school boys and girls the opportunity for competitive educational exhibits. It is an agricultural up-lift.

In 20 years, the Lee County fair has paid out more than $150,000 in agricultural premiums. What other annual Lee County event has returned as much as that to the farmer.

The Lee County fair is deserving of your support and interest and its officers ask that you be one of its good boosters this year as in years past.

BREDFIELD'S BEAU BRUM-MEL'S, direct from the Drake Hotel and Northwestern University, Chicago, a 10-piece dance band of polished musicians will furnish the music for the fair this year. You can't miss hearing this orchestra. A soft drowsy lullaby tune . . . a stalwart march number . . . a toe-tingling sensation in vibrant fox-trot time . . . it makes no difference what . . . you will hear music . . . music . . . all the way.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

DAN RORIMER, Hollywood scenario writer and former New York newspaper man, meets ANNE WINTER, who has come from Tulsa, Okla., to seek extra work. He takes a deep interest in her. Dan is with Continental Pictures, and not very satisfied with what he is doing.

Anne gets extra work at Grand United studios. She goes to live with two other extras, MONA MORRISON and EVA HARLEY. The latter is a bitter individual, possibly because of her failure to get much work, and from her Dan learns a lot about the problems of the vast army of extras.

GARRY SLOAN, famous director, has noticed Anne Winter. He gives her a "bit" in a picture. Dan, not liking Sloan, although he has not actually met him, is a bit apprehensive. The casting director at Grand United calls Anne up and tells her there may be a chance for her in a musical comedy picture. He and director FRED HURLEY get her to dance for them, and Hurley promises her a screen test. Anne elatedly tells this to Rorimer, who is more disinterested than ever at Continental. Rorimer, who is living with PAUL COLLIER, who writes a daily movie column for a string of newspapers, tells Collier that he has torn up his contract with Continental.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XIV

PAUL COLLIER'S fingers fell away from the typewriter keys. He swung around, rested one arm on the back of his chair, planted the other elbow on his little desk, braced his cheek with his fist.

"You what?" he said.

Rorimer sank heavily into an easy chair. He grinned. "I tore up my contract today. You know; my contract with Continental," he added with sarcastic explicitness, enjoying the mild sensation his announcement had created.

Collier, unmoving, stared at him for some moments in silence. "What's the matter?" he said presently. "Did the heat go to your head?"

"I tore it up right under Adamson's nose," Dan told him calmly. "What for?"

"Because I'm sick of Adamson and I'm sick of Continental. They don't want ideas; they want yes men and office politicians."

"I invited him to fire me, and tore up my copy of the contract to show him I wasn't fooling; but Adamson's so damn suspicious of everybody that he probably thought I was trying to put a fast one over on him. In fact, I'm sure of it by the way he acted."

"What did he say?" Collier asked, and Rorimer shrugged. He said, "Oh, he told me that as long as he held Continental's copy of the contract I might find it a bit difficult to leave to make other connections."

He lighted a cigarette and added that that was Adamson for you. "He's such a colossal bluff himself that he thought I was bluffing. And a bluff scares him silly; I learned that."

"And suppose he hadn't been bluffing," Collier said. "I suppose you would have waltzed right over to Paramount or M-G-M or some place and told them that their new scenario writer was ready to take off his coat and go to work—huh?"

DAN laughed. "Not exactly. But I'd rather free lance than work for Continental."

"You mean you'd rather starve," Collier snorted, and Rorimer smiled and quietly said that he knew something about that, too.

Paul was silent for a moment, and then he abruptly announced that he was going to mix a nightcap. He departed for the kitchen, and Rorimer could hear him at the refrigerator.

Collier's voice called presently

"You mean you'd rather starve," Collier snorted, and Rorimer smiled and quietly said that he knew something about that, too.

from the kitchen to ask Dan what had been the immediate cause of the row with Adamson, and Rorimer strolled out there with his hands in his pockets and said there would never be a change of doing anything original as long as Adamson was in authority. "His idea of heavy brain work is to change a good title like 'Grim Holiday' to 'Passion's Price'."

"He does everything left-handed. He wants a story, say, for Olga Johnson, or Atwood. No suggestions; just write something. And when you write it he says, 'Don't make me read it; tell it to me.'"

Dan swore explosively. "And you try to tell it to him—and before you've fairly started he stops you and says it won't do; it's not the type of story for Johnson at all. And you say, 'But this is not for Johnson; it's for Atwood,' and Adamson leans back in that big chair of his and looks out the window and says, 'Well, write it over for Johnson, or for Esther Crane. We've got a story for Atwood.'"

Rorimer stopped, and he took the glass that Collier offered him and drank from it. He was not exaggerating one bit, he insisted. "That's straight. That's just the kind of stuff Adamson pulls. Today I blew up. The other day they handed me a Saturday Evening Post story that they'd bought the rights to, and wanted me to adapt it. Adamson was in a great big hurry. . . . He's always in a hurry. . . . And after sweating over it and getting the script in shape, I learn today that he has passed the same story out to two other men on the staff."

"Can you imagine the big stiff? Just imagine! Instead of letting a couple of us collaborate on it and get the benefit of each other's ideas, he passes it around as if it was a contest or something! That's his idea of economy. They can't buy me a new typewriter to replace that old coffee mill I have to work on, but they can waste the time of three men making fairly important money, in duplicated effort. I'd like nothing better than to have Adamson tell me to get out and stay out."

DAN, his eyes glinting wrathfully, demanded of Collier what he would do under the same circumstances. "I suppose you'd smile and like it, eh? You would like so much—"

"Say," Collier interrupted, "if I ever landed one of those fancy scenario-writing jobs, I'd take out an accident policy on it. That's just how nice I'd treat it." Rorimer, he added, didn't know when he was well off. "I could put up with an awful lot, Danny, my boy, just as long as the old dough was there on pay day."

"I have a life-size picture of you," Dan retorted, his eyes taking in the other's lanky, powerful frame in significant appraisal. "You'd be planting your fist in the middle of Adamson's nose."

Collier grinned. He clasped his hands in back of his sleek black head and, leaning back indolently in his chair, observed that Adamson's nose was a big enough target. "I don't want to see you lose it, Dan," he said. "That crazy southern temper of yours will get you in trouble yet. What will you do—no foolin'—if Adamson decides to take you up?"

Rorimer replied that he hadn't given the matter much thought. "I'm not worried. Martin Collins is a friend of mine. He told me that if I ever thought I'd like to make a connection at Amalgamated, to let him know, and he'd see what he could do for me."

"Why, you old razor blade, you; you're too blamed stiff-necked to ask Collins or anybody else to do something for you," Paul accused him, and there was affection in his tone and in his smiling gaze.

Dan made no answer. He smoked in silence, his mind dwelling on more pleasant thoughts. Collier turned back to his typewriter and wrote steadily for 10 or 15 minutes, after which he leaned back with heavy finality and announced that he wanted another nightcap. "It's your turn, son," he said, and Dan went out to the kitchen.

Collier turned on the radio, stood before the open window, softly humming, hands thrust in his pockets, staring absently at the night sky.

Dan returned presently with the glasses, and Collier, taking his, held it up and looked through it toward the light. He said, "I forgot to tell you; I saw a friend of yours today. Mona Morrison. I spent most of the morning over at United Artists, and I was shagging along Formosa Avenue when I ran into her. I took her to lunch. She told me she had just finished up at one of those studios along Poverty Row. I forget which one." He smiled. "Mona's a great little kid, isn't she? And she's certainly keen about Anne Winter."

DAN said, "Anne Winter's getting a screen test."

"Yeah? That's a break, all right. Where's all this?"

"Grand United," Dan told him, and Collier said he certainly hoped she landed something. "I'd like to write a piece about her in my column; it's been a long time since I've run into a good old-fashioned human interest story about an extra girl coming through. How did it happen?"

Dan related what Anne had told that evening, and when he had finished Paul Collier said, "Harvey Bell and Hurley, eh? Hurley's a great scout. So's Bell, for that matter; only, Harvey's a little hard-boiled. He has to be, or he couldn't be a casting director. How did Anne happen to get under his skin? It isn't done often."

"He called her up," Rorimer said. "They liked her in that picture she was in. I understand that Sloan the Great had a few nice words for her."

"Oh! . . . Well, here's luck to her—and lots of it." "Same here," Rorimer said quietly, and Paul smiled. "You like Anne pretty well, don't you?" "Yep," Dan said shortly, and he moved over to the radio and silenced it.

Paul, grinning broadly, said, "You've no idea how eloquent that sounded. Well, I don't blame you; she's a swell girl. Remember," he said, "how crazy you were about looking her up when you got that letter from Ziggy Young? What would you do if Ziggy ever told her about that telegram you sent him? You know; the one hoping he'd get murdered in a speakeasy."

"You would bring that up!" Rorimer said. "I'm going to bed." "Wait a minute. I almost forgot. You mentioned Garry Sloan a minute ago, and I meant to tell you."

20th Century Robin Hood

Big game hunting after the manner of Robin Hood of old English legend is the plan of Stanley F. Spencer, above, of San Pedro, Calif., noted sportsman and former national archery champion. Spencer will ignore high-powered rifles and shot guns and rely solely on his bows and arrows in bringing down the grizzlies and other big game he expects to bag on his expedition into the Canadian wilds next year. Supencer is now in Seattle, Wash., where he daily goes into the wooded sections to practice his marksmanship with bow and arrow.

Earlier Services In Church Succeed

Memphis, Tenn.—(UP)—Attendance at the Sunday morning service of the Redeemer Lutheran church here has jumped from 90 to 110 per cent, the Rev. H. F. Meyer, pastor recently announced, after the hour of worship had been changed from 11 to 8 A. M. Housewives preparing big Sunday dinners on hot days are most appreciative, the Memphis clergymen said.

MANY CROSS HIGH SPAN

NAVY TRAINING SUBMARINE MEN IN USE OF "LUNG"

Practice Tank Erected to Speed Construction in Escape From Craft

New London, Conn.—(UP)—The navy is slowly but steadily going about the huge task of training its entire submarine personnel in the use of the "lung," underwater respiration device by which men may escape from the depths.

In order to simulate actual depth and pressure conditions without subjecting the men to the dangers of actual escape in the ocean, naval engineers are building a tall tank which may be flooded and entered through a lock at the bottom.

The tank, equipped with a spiral stairway leading to a platform at the top, towers 120 feet high over the submarine base here. When flooded to the top it holds 240,000 gallons of water.

When the tank is pumped full, a group of sailors to be trained will enter the control room or lock at the base. The room will be dry when they enter and they will study tables attached to the walls telling when to breathe while ascending and how many breaths to take at certain stopping points. Then they will attach the lungs and turn valves to flood their compartment. When the pressure within equals that without, they will open an escape hatch, similar to being installed on some of the newer submarines, and send up a buoy carrying a heavy rope, knotted at the points where they must pause for decompression in order to avoid ill effects caused by too rapid a change of pressure.

The tank will enable the navy to speed its training program. The program of the submarine force calls for every officer and enlisted man to be experienced in use of the escape device.

MUSEUM GETS FISH-LIZARD OF PAST AGES

Field Natural History Collection Receives Specimen

Chicago —(UP)—The fossil skeleton of an ichthyosaurus—a fish-lizard which roamed the lands and seas more than 150,000,000 years ago, has been received by the paleontological division of the department of Geology at Field Museum of Natural History here.

The fossil, very complete and in excellent state of preservation according to officials, was found in a stone quarry in Bavaria, in a section from which lithographic shales are secured.

The block of stone which concealed the fossil split directly along the skeleton, revealing a clear impression of the fins and skin. This specimen was of a comparatively young fish-lizard, being about four feet long.

According to Prof. Elmer S. Riggs, associate curator or paleontology, full grown ichthyosaurs have attained lengths of 10 feet. This prehistoric creature had a fish-like body with a tall and fins, but with a long snout similar to that of a gar pike. The jaws were lined with sharp
